

FROM THE PRESIDENT'S DESK

“♪Should auld acquaintance be forgot, And never brought to mind? Should auld acquaintance be forgot, And auld lang syne.♪”
Wait a minute, what’s with these lyrics? This is July, not New Year’s Eve! These lyrics, which were penned by the famous Scottish writer Robert Burns as a poem, were not written specifically for the new year. Rather, Burns wrote them to celebrate friends; his words were later put to music. In Scotland and Britain, these lyrics are associated with many types of celebrations, not specifically New Year’s Eve as in the United States.

So, throughout Seaford this July we sing this song for two wonderful people associated with our Library. Please raise your glasses for Eileen Montalbano and Barbara Richardson.

Since late 2004 Eileen Montalbano has served our community as a member of the Board of Trustees. My fellow Trustees and myself have had the pleasure of serving with her. Montalbano’s thoughts, opinions and guidance have helped the Library progress forward. The Library could not have passed eleven budgets during her tenure, undertaken facility renovations, expanded children’s and young adult programs or continued our summer music series without her involvement. Montalbano’s term of office expires on June 30th.

For 28 years Barbara Richardson’s smiling face and helpful demeanor graced our Circulation Desk area. From July 1, 1987 through April 30, 2015 Richardson assisted an untold number of library patrons with questions about books, CDs, DVDs, and other lending materials. I could not even imagine to guess at how many physical items Richardson has loaned out to the people of Seaford over her tenure with the Library.

Appropriately, let’s celebrate with a rousing rendition of “Auld Lang Syne” in honor of Eileen Montalbano and Barbara Richardson. They are two terrific Seaford women and the Library is a much, much better place for their association with it.
